Seal Sr. Crowned King of the Gulf Coast At Fete

Mr. Seal, Sr., president of the Gulf Bank and prominent civic leader, was crowned King of the Gulf Coast at the Mississippi Coast fishing rodeo in Gulfport, Miss., Sunday night.

Mr. Seal, Sr., 72, lifetime resident of St. Louis, received the largest vote Monday from Jim Reese, Gulfport Radio WGCM, chairman of the event. Making the presentation, Reese told the new king: "You are well deserved, indeed." The award recognizes an individual for outstanding contribution to the health and welfare of the people, and to the general progress of the Mississippi Coast.

Mr. Seal, Sr. was born and lives in Bay St. Louis, Miss. Seal, who as a boy was a laborer, worked his way through Mississippi A. & M. (Now Mississippi State University) by selling goats. He graduated in 1911. After compiling a record as an officer over the world, he joined the Hancock Bank, of which he has been President for 20 years. Seal has ably represented the state and national bank for many years. He served as a director and on the executive committee of the Lumbermen's Association, Mississippi oldest and largest lumber company. He also has been a member of the Board of Trustees of Higher Learning.

Mr. Seal has earned himself a well deserved reputation in important segments of the State's economy — banking, seafood, forestry and cattle. He introduced Brahman cattle to this area, taking this step in 1914. During the 1930s when times were so hard, he was personally instrumental in building a seafood plant to help out the Bay St. Louis economy. He was among the pioneers in reforestation and not only serves as a director of the Mississippi Forestry Association, but was responsible for setting up a Forestry Scholarship at Mississippi State University for Harrison and Hancock County boys.

Mr. Seal's most important contributions to growth, development and welfare of the Gulf Coast has been in his chosen field of Banking. Becoming President of the Hancock Bank in 1932 with assets of under two million dollars, it now has six offices and resources in excess of $33 million. It is the third largest banking institution in the state. For many years it was the only one serving the west half of Harrison County. Through his conservative, but forward looking management, he has provided the financial basis and advice that fostered and sparked the phenomenal growth that our area has had. We believe that no living man has done more for this area and its people than Leo Seal.

Mayor John Scafile and Commissioners Cyril Glover and Warren Traub met Wednesday in New Orleans with E. M. Brigneau, president of Industrial Electric, Inc., and the firm's lawyer to discuss contract agreement between the City of Bay St. Louis and the Industrial Company. This was in connection with the proposed move of the company's architectural porcelain enamel division to Bay St. Louis under the BAWI program.

Mayor Scafile said, "the City will apply to the A. & I Board for a certificate of public necessity and convenience. When this is obtained," he added, "the City will call an election for the authorization of a bond issue to purchase a site and to erect a building for industry."

A location for the proposed building, which is approximately 50,000 sq. ft. is not definite, but it must be located, Scafile said, where it will have access to a railroad.

The plant would employ approximately 100, increasing up to 150 over a period of two to three years.

Industrial Enameling Division, which manufactures architectural porcelain enamel for service stations, office buildings, store fronts and industrial purposes, is one of the 10 largest producers of this product in the United States.

The type of manufacturing operation, Mayor Scafile added, is clean and offers no problem from dust, fumes or odors.

Industrial Electric, Inc., was incorporated June 10, 1929, and the Enameling Division was formed in 1945. E. M. Brigneau, Sr., who has been making his home in Bay St. Louis for the past five years, is president of Industrial Electric, Inc.

Mrs. Laura Brigneau, Monticello, is secretary-treasurer; Robert Guilbault, a former Bay St. Louis resident, is vice-president and general manager of the Enameling Division, and E. M. Brigneau, Jr. is assistant vice-president.

Mayor Scafile said, "there are still a few details to be ironed out, but I think this is a great opportunity to get industry in this area, it will be wonderful and would be the beginning of a new era for the City."

"The city will do everything possible to encourage and promote it," he continued, and "I hope it will be favored by the people when it comes to a vote."

Inside Shrimp Season To Open In Mississippi

Shrimping was re-opened in Mississippi Wednesday at sunrise between the International Canal and the coastline, the Mississippi Marine Conservation Commission has announced.

The conservation Commission Monday night at Biloxi rescinded an order passed June 17, two days after the season opened, which had closed the waters to shrimping close to the shoreline.

At that time the shrimp were considered too small to be caught. However, Monday night Biologist William Demoran and Chief Inspector George Williams reported that during this time the shrimp have grown.

"I don't think we'd be in too much trouble if we opened the season again," Demoran noted, pointed out the size of the shrimp had increased and fishermen need work.

Demoran pointed out that Louisiana has been faced with problems of small shrimp because the seasons are set by law.

Chairman William G. Simpson pointed out that one of the advantages of Mississippi marine laws is the season can be closed at any time when an emergency exists.

Demoran stated that the shrimp are smaller in the Biloxi Bay area, but become larger toward the western section of the state.

The commission pointed out that one area which will remain closed to shrimping is at the mouth of Biloxi Bay. This includes an area from the Biloxi lighthouse south to No. 10 Beacon, east along the northshore of Deer Island to Grand Bayou, and northeast to Marsh Point.

An ordinance was adopted at the meeting which will forbid opening oysters for sale in places other than those approved or authorized by the Mississippi State Health Department.

The ordinance goes into effect Aug. 1, and the reason, the commission stated, was because opening or shucking oysters in unauthorized places cause a threat to the health, public welfare and the oyster industry.

Demoran reported that the Mississippi Southern College commerce department has been authorized to work on the economic survey which the commission intends to sponsor to obtain information revealing the financial status of the seafood industry in the state.

Chairman Simpson announced that the commission is ready to resume planting oyster shells on the state's oyster reefs.

Time To Plant Seed For Own Plants

When biennials and perennials are grown from seed, summer is the best time to plant them. The seedbed should be located, if possible, in a partially shady spot; if not, a frame with alternately-spaced slats will provide just the amount of shade needed. When these two groups of flowers are planted too late, they may not bloom the following season. Perennials are at their best in two or three years when good, strong clumps have been formed.

Wood Factory In Duck Hill

Williams Wood Products entered into production in Duck Hill in June. Major product of the company is a hollow-core flush type door; initial plans call for the production of 600 doors daily. Local Pulpwood Dealer Among Those Reporting 1960-61 Reforestation Results

ATLANTA, Ga. — The pulp and paper industry, and independent suppliers planted and distributed 29,673,217 trees in Mississippi during the 1960-61 season, according to a survey just completed by the Southern Pulpwood Conservation Association.

Henry J. Maleberger of Atlanta General Manager of BPCA, said that to encourage forest development the pulp and paper companies gave 1,024,800 of these trees to individual landowners in Mississippi. At the same time, independent suppliers planted 200,000 trees in the state.

Farmers and other landowners, Mr. Maleberger stressed, are dependent upon to grow a large part of the pulpwood which suppliers will continue to purchase for shipment to the pulp and paper manufacturers.

In the 11-state Southern region as a whole, the survey showed, the industry accounted for the planting of a total of 306,427,581 forest tree seedlings. Approximately 63 per cent of these trees, or 241,968,221 were produced in 10 company-operated nurseries in the South.

Mr. Maleberger pointed out further that, using a ratio of one acre for each 800 trees, an estimated 463,000 acres of land were planted with trees which were transplanted from nurseries. He added that the new technique of direct seeding, which is gaining in acceptance by industry nurserymen, resulted in the planting of another 4,856 acres.

Many pulp and paper companies in Mississippi reported the results of their reforestation activities. Pulpwood suppliers reporting were Stark Timber Co., Inc., Lexington, and Sam Whitfield, Inc., St. Louis.

Do you count the candles on your birthday cake? Why bother? Once you're sweet sixteen, it doesn't matter how many candles you're entitled to. What counts is what you're doing with those years.

The years that are past have burned themselves out. Perhaps they have been all you've wanted them to be—but, if you're like most of us, maybe you could have made them a little better.

One of God's greatest gifts is the marvelous fact that it's never too late to begin again.

Birthdays remind us of the passing of time, of a new life. Celebrate your birthday by giving. Give something of yourself, by going to your church and taking part in its activities, especially those that help others. Next year, the added candle on your cake will burn with a special brightness!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

PROGRESS INVESTMENT—Mississippi's investment in highways reaches every citizen. In the sketch above, the artist has portrayed some of the benefits of good highways.

Good Roads Vital To Economic Strength Of Miss. People

EDITORIAL NOTE: This is the first of a four-part series dealing with the highway and development of the Mississippi State Highway Department and the state system of highways.

PART ONE — Mississippi's Economy
Mississippi has an investment of over half a billion dollars in highways, a state system of over 8,200 miles. This system sustains an economy which produces annually $2,024,000,000 in manufactured goods, $953,455,000 in farm products, $380,900,000 in forest prod-

IMPORTANT TO EVERYONE

Why the emphasis on good roads, and what are some of the economic factors which have made the most-used of all publicly-financed facilities? Take the farmer as an example. Everything he produces goes to market over a highway. His supplies come the same route, and when he goes to church on Sunday, it's over the highway. The laborer commutes to his daily job via the highway, the factory where he works receives raw products and ships finished goods over the highways. Nearly 300,000 children ride school buses daily over these highways. The average automobile owner travels almost thirty miles a day to fulfill the countless missions necessary to present-day living.

TRANSPORTATION IN HISTORY

Though the pattern of living has put new emphasis on highways, transportation has been the key to growth and development since pioneers hacked their way into the wilderness two centuries or more ago. Early settlement of Mississippi took place along the rivers and coastal areas where boats were the chief mode of movement for people and goods. Biloxi, the first white settlement in the Mississippi valley, was established because of a natural harbor, while Natchez, Port Gibson, Vicksburg, and other towns, had origins linked directly to this transportation potential.

INLAND TRANSPORTATION

Water, however, did not prove the answer to all transportation problems. Overland routes were necessary in many areas where rivers and streams were not available or were not deep enough to accommodate boats. Inland colonization grew as paths were cut through the wilderness.

From these overland trails came such famous roads as the Natchez Trace, stretching 500 miles from what is now Nashville, Tennessee to Natchez. It was used first by workmen who manned the one-way flatboats to New Orleans, but later served traders, settlers, and mail carriers. The National Park Service, which recognized the Natchez Trace as "one of the Nation's most famous old roads," is con-

The best way to take off those extra pounds and to keep them off is to plan low-calorie menus around foods you normally eat. That's the summary sentence of weight control from nutrition specialists.

While you are weight watching, you can use a variety of foods from the four basic food groups. They will stimulate interest in foods and insure a well balanced diet. You will develop new food habits when you follow a diet of this type and will be able to prevent the lost pounds from returning.

And take it slowly — a pound or two off a week is plenty. At this rate you can lose from 10 to 20 pounds in 10 weeks. This will give you time also to learn to like a variety of simply prepared low-calorie foods.

Remember to choose foods from the basic four groups each day. They are milk and milk products, meat and meat alternates, fruits and vegetables and breads and cereals.

JULY PLENTIFUL FOODS

How will peaches and turkeys fit into your July menus? They are the two top foods on the plentiful list for the month. Other foods to watch for in plentiful supply are summer vegetables, canned grapefruit sections, plums and shrimp.

TIME? OR MONEY?

Six out of 10 women in a recent survey said their number one problem was lack of time. The other four of the 10 said their biggest problem was money.

These two problem headed the list with 511 homemakers in 46 states. The homemakers in the survey were from both urban and rural homes. In commenting on this survey, Dr. Starley Hunter, family economist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, said that many homemakers need to learn principles of good home management. They need to apply them to the increasingly complex demands of home and family life.

The time problem stemmed mainly from pressure to engage in outside activities. This becomes more pressing with widening interests of growing children. The 111 women in the survey said they belonged to a total of 1900 organizations.

The homemakers divided their time haphazardly among food-related tasks, house cleaning, laundry and child care. Younger wives planned their use of time even less efficiently than older ones.

FLOWER NOTES

You can start several annual flowers from seed in early July. These include Verbena, tithonia, Statice, Salvia, Vinca, zinnia, annual mums, cosmos, and portulaca (moss rose).

Perennials that can be started now include forget-me-not, hollyhock, poppy, shasta daisy, gallardia, coreopsis, gloriosa daisy, dianthus, snow-in-summer and Sweet William.

LOW INCOME WORRIES?

Worrying about a low income? Even if you can't raise the number of dollars you have, you can often make the ones you have do more for you. One good way to stretch your pay check is to follow good buying practices.

If you don't, you are liable to be taken in by high pressured advertising and motivation appeals. Then you may buy something that's right for your neighbor, but not for you.

A good quality, low-priced, attractive article is a poor buy if you need something else more. Before you buy, consider your present and future needs. The family needs to grow and they can't create until the child is supporting.

You can develop skill with thinking at home. Decide what you want to do or do not do, and abilities you possess. You can save some food, a garden or changing habits of saving for a home or future school. Used good judgment what you can make if your health won't let in a garden or on your pays to leave such work is better to buy services than to pay medical bills for later.

ECONOMY FROZEN PACKAGES

You may have tried the foods in poly bags, but for them next time you are going. See if they will fit in your family. For some, family size frozen fruits and vegetables packages are too small for the institutional packages too.

The vegetables and fruits in these see-through bags are frozen individually. It's possible to use as much as you need from the package and put the rest back in the freezer for later use. You see exactly what you're buying too.

In The Promised Land

Heroic History

ON JULY 4, 1776, a courageous band of American patriots defied the tyrannies of a king, revolted high taxation, and declared their liberty and independence.

Dedicated to the ideals that men are endowed with certain "unalienable rights," among which are "Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness," and with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, they mutually pledged to one another their Lives, Fortunes and sacred Honor.

Patrick Henry delivered his "Liberty or Death" speech, Paul Revere aroused the countryside, minutemen marched under the leadership of George Washington, and the liberty of man was never the same after that.

An impoverished country, sparsely populated, with little to sustain its people but their faith and fortitude, won universal admiration and the respect of the world.

This heroic experience will live in the hearts and minds of men until the end of time. And if the living will re-dedicate themselves to the ideals perpetuated in the Declaration of Independence, liberty will not perish from the earth.

The world's freest and foremost power was formed out of the vision, genius and energy of the fearless and the enterprising. Liberty is a perishable product, preserved only to those willing to fight for it. And unless the Spirit of 1776 is revived the Republic will not endure to prosper and merit the confidence of mankind.

Sandra Dee's Glowing Career Zoomed After Successful Film Test

Sandra Dee, who stars in the title role of "Tammy Tell Me True," which opens July 13 at the Legion Theatre, reveals now that her screen career shines so brightly—that her most trying filmland ordeal was her original screen test.

The young blonde beauty describes it as an experience she probably would not be able to duplicate were she to face it anew under similar circumstances.

Now a three year veteran of studio sound stages, Sandra points out that she had just turned 15—and as yet had never kissed a boy—when producer Ross Hunter put her before the cameras for test footage.

The handsome young man the studio chose to work with her, John Saxon, was affable and extremely considerate. The director, Harry Keller, is the same man who mentored her work in "Tammy Tell Me True," the Universal International color picture in which she co-star with John Gavin.

She was delighted with them both.

But she was still scared stiff. The scene chosen for her to do was from the picture intended as her initial vehicle, "The Restless Years," a story of uninhibited teenagers.

The entire sequence consisted of her attempt to make violent love to her young companion.

"My heart was thumping so hard," she recalls, "I thought it might pop out of my mouth, but I didn't want to let on because as long as I was going through with the test I naturally wanted it to come out right."

Sandra says her main concern was to make it appear that she was an experienced hand at twisting a young man around her finger and making him completely subservient to her whims.

"All the time I was going through the various pieces of business suggested by the scene," she elaborated, "I was gasping like a fish out of water because I found it hard to catch my breath."

It was this reaction, she later learned, which helped to turn the test into such an impressive piece of celluloid.

"I discovered that all the panting and chest-heaving which I was doing out of necessity apparently succeeded in adding to the episode precisely the convincing quality it needed to properly bring it off."

Although she's now such a seasoned trouper she handles even the most demanding sequence in "Tammy Tell Me True" with enviable aplomb, the teenage star declares that following the crucial test she had to take to her bed for two days.

"After that," she says, "everything else was easy."

At Star Theatre Starting Sunday

The "Blue Denim" girl has come of age as an actress. Always a skilled and sensitive player, Carol Lynley emerges in "Return to Peyton Place," 20th Century-Fox CinemaScope DeLuxe Color sequel to the national best-seller, as a beautiful young woman of conviction and dramatic strength.

As Allison MacKenzie, the role identified in real-life with author Grace Metalious, Carol is called upon to portray the joys and penalties of the success heaped upon a young author who has stripped bare in a sensational novel, the prejudices and weaknesses of her own hometown community. Carol interprets the part with wisdom and sensitivity, appearing in her own defense at a town meeting called to determine whether or not her controversial book should be banned.

During the course of the production, Carol was married to Michael Selsman, a New York press agent. She declares that she will retire from the screen for at least half a year. "Right now I want more than anything else to be just Mrs. Mike Selsman. I want to cook and keep house for the man I love. Later on I know I will resume the career I am interrupting."

Carol and Mike are making their home in Jamaica, L. I.

"ONE EYED JACKS"

Rio (Marlon Brando) and his pal, Dad Longworth (Karl Malden), rob a Mexican bank. Dad later takes the stolen gold and deserts Rio. Surrounded, Rio is captured and sent to Sonora prison while Dad disappears. "One Eyed Jacks" late show Saturday, regular run starts Sunday, at the Legion Theatre, Gulfport.

Garden Of The Month

The garden of the Carrera home, 484 S. Beach, was selected as Garden of the Month by the Bay-Waveland Garden Club.

An attractive feature of the garden is the lovely border of zinnias on either side of the old fashioned brick wall leading to the porch, and several blooming hibiscus across the front of the house.

Members of the Garden of the Month Committee are Mesdames Albert Kuehn, K. T. Breland and R. A. Steinmeyer and Miss Barbara Gray.

Lyon Will Shift To Grenada Soon

Officials of Lyon, Inc., said in Detroit that the company will move its automotive wheel cover manufacturing operations to its new Grenada plant early in July. In commenting on the reasons for the move, George A. Lyon, Jr., company president, said: "Since the automobile companies gave prime consideration to prices, it is obvious that we are in a poor competitive position (in Detroit)."
